Rosecrans has startled the radicals at all events. Whatever may have been the nature of his recent conference with Lee and other Confederate Generals, he has awakened the fears of the radicals, who have an instinctive dread of anything like a peaceful interchange of opinions between Northern and Southern soldiers. This is an evidence of weakness. It is also a confession of the proscriptive apirit which desice all freedom of debate in the South, and has ateadily refused from the first all reasonable overtures for peace. Rosecrans may be a dreamer, but if he is, has dreams are pleasant dreams. They are not filled with visions of death and desirve above every other thing—the restoration of the Union as it was. There is no subjugation in them. There is no domineening insolence in them. They contain as little of the mad-dog element as of the negro-burean element. Indeed they are an opleasant and sumy that it were well the whole country dreamed as

The people give to them ich powers as the Constitution gives lem, but they reserve all other rights ad nowers. NO WARBANT IN LAW FOR IT.

the sins which so readily beset ns. the sins which so readily beset ns. thou the sins a calinly and properly, without regard our past political connections, are would be much less dissering and ill-feeling in the country. But men become so identified with cirparty that they will follow it through bis is not as it should be. No party nat does wrong and oppresses any portion of the people cun, under any circumstances, he right. I do not believe with fyler, that "names are things." No name, however valuable may have been the services of the party bearing it, can make a wrong thing right. If that party commits a wrong, it is the people who are interested in having it righted. It may not be of so much importance so far as your own personal interests are concerned whether tha action of the party is right or wrong, you may think, if hy that party you expect to obtain an office; but this principle is wrong. Office-holders are not the masters, but the servants of the people, and by allowing personal and party prejudices to rule us we become the slaves of the party and of the office-holders. SOUND SENSE.

SOUND SENSE.

I do not come before you to-day as a life-long Democrat. I was brought up at the feet of Henry Clay, and was a Whignutil the breaking out of the war shattered all parties then existing. In myState I became a member of what was known as the Union Democratic party. After the war closed I became a Democrat. I do not claim perfection. I am not exampt, more than other people, from the influence of prejudice; but we ought all, as far as practicable, to exert such an influence as will aid in bringing about peace and prosperity in our government, and in so doing we aid ourselves. If we aid the party to tramp down the rights of any portion of our fellow-cilizens, we hunt ourselves. I appeal to you all, that we ought to come together with patriotic purposes, determined to ascrifice all shings to the peace and that we ought to come together the patriotic purposes, determined to rince all things to the peace and sperity of our country. We should late the sallor boy who was taken priser by the Algerine pirates. Having me captured, they prepared to slav him. had managed to thrust into his become ag of his country, and when asked if had any measage to leave, or any reset to make, he drew this out, and unlime the start and attract to the because over will be made. Just so soon as we consent to put it out to remodel it, it will be rnined. The people of Kentneky and of Indians have a common interest and lesize to see our Union preserved from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the fresen takes to the Gulf, a free, prosperons, and united people. We were not willing when the war broke out to part with any portion of the Union, and when the manual provided the doctrine of secession I was one of the first to so into the service. s one of the first to go into the service Governors—such men as no man could trust his little substance with. They are the favored class. Now, I ask you, ought this system to be longer tolerated?

this system to be longer tolerated?

THE WHINING FAULT-FINDERS,
There are men who come around through here asking, "Can you trust one of these red-handed rebels?" They appeal to the father who has lost a son, or to the widow who has lost her husband, and larrow up their feelings, asking, "Will you have these men restored to power?" They go sbout opening the wounds and making them bleed afresh. They are thrusting their finger: into the very heartwounds, and all for what? To etir up anger and strife and hard feelings, in order that their own crimes may be overlocked. There is no principle in them, and their action is againet every principles of true estatesmanable. I venture there is not any one of these men who came around talking thus who ever intends to restore the Union. What! Are we to be taught hate and envy and strife, rather than have our reason appealed to? It is my boast and prids that my faith rests on the integrity of the people. Their party propose, as a matter of punishment, to turn the back upon them, and crowd them down to a condition of semi-barbarism, in order that the negro may be litted up to their level, and they ask you to carry out a polley giving to people the right to vote who have not intelligence enough to know how they onght to vote. Do you ever expect to make friends of those people by outraging and abusing them? By this course you suppress the friendly feeling instead of restoring it. THE WHINING FAULT-FINDERS.

RENTUCKY O. K. There is no bitterness existing in tucky. There the coldier who has been it the Sonthern army has sinker hands an made friends with the one he fought it the Northern army, and they sit togethe at the arme table, showing the utmos good feeling.

WHY?

Oh, to be sure, there are a few growling men who go about with sour faces, talking nothing but rebel, rebel; but they sere very few. Ninetseu out of every twenty who were in the Northern army tow vote the Democratic ticket, and act with our party. This victory has been gained by statemanship. It has been a victory of the seeple who have relabed the management of affairs in their own hands. How was it done: We simply made friends of them instead of enemies. When they said, "We will submit to anything you require," we believed them, took them at heir word, and the heppy state of affairs now existing in Kentucky is the result!

PURITANISM.

But perhaps there is some man who c'oes not want to make friends with those nen. It so, I have nothing to address to tim, and would not if I could. Like lightraim, he legiven up to his dots. He is one of those straight-jacket Puritane who thinks he never did anything wrong, and I want to just leave him for the devil to roast.

"Let us Have Peace."

From the (included to mercial 2006.

An address from General Lee and ce ain other rebel leaders of this class is avor of Seymour and Blair wil soo ppear. In a general way there would not be seen that the seed of the seed o declaring that it will be the dniy of Seymour, if elected, to fordbly overthrow and drive cut the State governments, and even expel Congram itself, cannot be disposed of in that way. The profession of Lee of "reverence for the Constitution" is an lusuit to the American people. Having violated his oath to become head traitor, the loyal people will not accept him now either as teacher or leader. Having remained alient during the years since the war, while his old associates in treason were hatching every kind of derlitry, it would have been better for him had be not spoken at all. Men like him will be judged by past actions, not by promises for the future. This Lee made a sofemn promise noder oath, and broke fit to engage in a crime that has no parallel. It is perfectly natural that he should wish to have Seymour and Biair elected, but he cannot teach the American people their dniy.

elected, that be cannot teach the American people their duty.

LEE AND BEAUERGAED DEMOLESHED.

From the N V. Advertiser, Etch.

Generals Lee, Beautregard, Echola, and other officers of the late rabel army may proclaim that they are for peace and order, and accept the situation. But judging from the tone of the leading men who have heretofore ruled and directed the destinies of the South, these distinguished officers have not the rank and file with them. It was the Wade Hamptons, the Wises, the Cobbe, the Toomtsee, and the Humphrey Marshalla, who fired the Southern hearts and precipitated civil war upon the country. The Leas, Beautregards, Ecoolees, and Longstreels had nothing to do with exciting the wild passions of the people of the South. The same men who were engaged in that business is 1860 and 1861 are again engaged in the same occupation. Lee and Beautregard are officers without men.

Moreover, a promise on the part of the rebels that, if wa will restore them to powar, they will behave themselves, only goer a very little way. What is wanted is a promise that they will behave themselves whether restired to power or not—that they will act as good, peaceable, and foyal citizens under their present State governmenta. Their promise to abstain from a row if we let them have evarything to suit themselves, is of no force. Besida, it is too ists for any manifesto to do away with the effect of Wade Hampton's and Forrest'e, and Semmes'a, and Hill's, suffering the first threats in violance. Mere promises in the tace of the outrages row being constantly committed by the Knikluz Klan, and in the face of threats made by hemocrate over whom Lee has no control whatever, are—mere promises.

It was evident at a glance that the Woodford Beile was not in good condition, and her backers began to exhibit no itatle disappointment. Her competitors, on the contrary, looked the very pictures of sprightliness and durability. We observed that little Maggie Hunter was in especially fine trim. At this stage there was great deal of ontsidebettingby parties whose faith in the judgment of the "knowing ones" was rather shaky. At the tap of the indges' bell all eyes were fixed pon the horses as they drew up for the First Heat—A good start was had withnt any of the usual skirmishing. taily with the general experience, but he wented to know, also, the experience of the members, that they might judge as to what price taken this fail for this season's crop would approximate a given price in the spring or next fail for the same cron He auggested that this elirinkage ac-counts for the difference in estimates of crops in October and the February following, and may be one reason why premium crope, usually estimated early in the fail, so greatly exceed the general yield. Farmers are rather increduious as to raising one hundred bushels to the acre; but, estimating at tan shocks to the acre, his overseer had reported one crope till bushels and Mr. reported one crop at 115 hushels, and Mr. Thompson, a neighbor, had raised 130 oushels to the acre. He was a lime-burner, and had used the reiuse of lime and hemp as a manure, planting four feet apart, and about two and a half in the rows, and cultivating entirely by the shovel plow. Dr. Barber had received a premium for 101 bushels to the acre, raised on au island in the Ohio; drilled ined that his suppositious as to its be ing a disease of the spinal cord were co rect, tor it was found to be much diseased and tubercles formed up-on it in great numbers. How-ever, this examination was not as ur feet, and planted one foot apart in he row. He mentioned these facts to re nove credullty and stimulate con complete or as assuring as he could have wished it, inasmuch as decomposition bad set in. He makes another exam-instiou, but that will be of the brain of auother animal. The cause of this canfference in estimates taken earlier and later in the eeason. Mr. W. il. Frederick had not much ex-perience on this point, his attention not not be told any more than the cause o bolera or any of those epidemics pec aving been specially directed to it. Mr. H. H. Buffemeyer seid he had sen iliar to human beings that have such a myeterious origin. Dr. Liautard, in en-deavoring to make the disease plain to a a load of corn to town in Oclober, which he estimated at forty-two or torty-three bushels, and was aurprised to find it had welgbed only thirty-five bushels. Next non-professional, said it was what we call in human beings the spotted fever. The course of the doctor in dealing ail he sent in a load of the same elze as with this disease has been to ap thartic, followed by acouste and gailered from the field, and the result was forty-two bushels—the bushel in each case weighing seventy pounds.

The President said he had a crop valued to him in October at twenty-five cents a bushels, which he sold next summer at thirty-seven and a half cents, and got back only his own money. If kept icose in the shock the shrinkage is not so great ence in measuring to estimate crops. Ha should be measured from the ceuter; this if ilself will make a difference of ten to ifteen per ceut. He had himself got a premium ior one hundred and three and a baif bushels to the acre, estimated in th iatter end of September. To a question he replied: Corn should be cut when the blades are periectly dry above the ear; though dry and yellow, will get green again in the shock: The grain lu the ear abould be perfectly dry, and not dough

The surface of the ground was quite rough and nneven, more se, indeed, than le nenally found in meadows, interegrated here and there with stnmps and a few briere. The crop of grass (timothy) was rather light.

I nder these circumstances the working of this rake was quite satisfactory. The hay was taken clean from the groundeven from around the stnmps and brierpatchee, and deposited in winnows at a distance about equal to the ordinary old-fashloned revolving rake. The work was in every respect better done than that of the old-fashloned rake, the hay being taken cleaner from the ground and deposited in winnowain much better condition for cocking. It is well known to all farmers that the twisting and winding-up of the hay by the ordinary wooden steel-teeth buggy rakes greatly interferes with ite subsequent handling. This objection is almost entirely obviated by this rake.
